SENATE.

The proceedings of the senate [illegible] of a character at [illegible] portent. The junior senator from New York, Mr Hill, made the motion of which he had given notice last Friday [illegible] to the consideration of the bill to repeal the Sherman silver purchase law. In support of the motion Hill made a [illegible] prepared speech in which he [illegible] undoubtedly a friend of [illegible] The speech received unusual attention [illegible] and from a large [illegible] galleries, but the motion was defeated by nearly a two-thirds majority — [illegible] 23, nays 42.

Afterwards, the quarantine bill was taken up [illegible] without a division [illegible] a bill for the payment out of the treasury of [illegible] taxes on lands held by Indians in sev[illegible] Finally the automatic coupler bill was taken up and discussed for a time when it [illegible] over until to-morrow.

The Jackson Appointment.

Washington, Feb 6. Senator Call to-day [illegible] the dispatch sent by J S Clarkson to [illegible] Hook of Tennessee char[acterizing] [illegible] nomination of Judge Jackson [illegible] bench as a betrayal of Republican principles and an abandonment of [illegible] Republicans of the south and [illegible] had been sent to the [illegible] Cullom said "The protest [illegible] by Mr Clarkson is upon the same [illegible] as that [illegible] Representa[tive] Mr Hook but is hardly so strong in lan[guage] [illegible] He makes no personal charge [illegible] Mr Jackson—does not charge him [illegible] or dishonesty or anything [illegible] His charge is that he is a Demo[crat] [illegible] connected prominently with [illegible] Confederacy.

"[illegible] Harrison is a man who runs [illegible] and has a habit of staying by [illegible] he says and does. He may have [illegible] Mr. Jackson in the belief that he [illegible] secured the confirmation of a [illegible] was anxious that some one [illegible] be confirmed or he may have been [illegible] influenced, or he may have had [illegible] of which no one outside of himself [illegible] knowledge. I have not been to see [illegible] For myself I am frank to say that I [illegible] the Jackson appointment very un[illegible] and in a certain sense very [illegible] [illegible] would have been [illegible] Republican lawyer [illegible] plenty Judge Lardier is a [illegible] of the class. If the De[mocrats] [illegible] of the senate had refused [illegible] confirmation the [illegible] conferred upon them. I do not [illegible] members of southern Republicans [illegible] over in favor of a [illegible] with the rebellion [illegible] discriminated against and [illegible] think [illegible] will ever feel any other [illegible] As to what will be done as to [illegible] will take I do not know. I will see the judiciary committee [illegible] possibly some conclusion will [illegible] I do not think however that Mr [illegible] a man who would be induced to [illegible] nomination by any amount of party pressure. At present, I have not [illegible] finally examined the matter to make a [illegible] concerning it.

[illegible] CIRCUIT SUCCESSOR.

Kentucky Republicans are already [illegible] a fight for the circuit judgeship [illegible] by Jackson. Kentuckians here say their [illegible] will get the circuit vacancy if Jackson is confirmed in time to admit of another judicial nomination. Senators say Jackson's nomination will probably be confirmed [illegible] but that it may possibly [illegible] shall not be filled by this administra[tion].

Kentucky has presented the names of two [illegible] Republicans for Jackson's place [illegible] They are General W. O. Bradley of Frankfort, who was a delegate [illegible] at the Minneapolis convention [illegible] Evans of Louisville [illegible] of the famous [illegible] Grant [illegible] commissioner of internation[al] [illegible] Arthur Evans is more of a lawyer and less of a politician than Bradley, but it is said he will show a great deal of political strength. One or the other will get the place if it is filled by this administration.

A Snub for Tammany

New York, Feb. 6.—The World says no Tammany man will be appointed either to the collectorship or the postmastership of New York. Colorado Springs, Feb 6, 1893.

To the Mayor and City Council

Gentlemen: The committee appointed to inspect and report on the Huerfano street viaduct would submit the following. Your committee visited the same on Saturday. Information had been given that the cap [illegible] of the [illegible] had been blocked up with timber instead of resting on a solid bed of concrete. This information coming from different sources it was thought best to investigate the [illegible] Oneyed Galvanized to be [illegible] and it was found that this cap [illegible] blocked with wood, leaving a space of about four inches. Which space was filled up with small stones so far as we could determine, and the outer edge cemented over. Information was given that at [illegible] were in a similar condition, but they were not uncovered. This is not the class of workmanship or material called for [illegible] to be paid for by the city—and [illegible] on the part of [illegible] in allowing such material to be placed there, contrary to the terms of the [illegible] and contract. We do not know who is responsible for this defective work—but we do think that the party or parties responsible for the same, should remedy the defect without further cost to the city.

J. A. Inman,
Chairman

Alderman Gillingham moved that the report be referred back to see who is responsible.

Alderman Finegan said that he had always been convinced that [illegible] back of the viaduct. He would say again that this viaduct might fall down. In forty [illegible] [illegible] always [illegible] Mr [illegible] did not have time to [illegible] to the work. The senate then went into committee of the whole with Mr Adams in the chair, on general orders.

The first matter taken up was the consideration of Mr Armstrong's bill for an act to regulate the employment of armed guards for the protection of private property, and prohibiting a punishment for violation thereof. The bill makes it unlawful for any person or corporation to employ or place in charge of private property any person or persons armed with any deadly weapon without first having obtained and filed with the clerk and recorder of the county where such property is situated a written permit from the sheriff or if within the limits of a city from the chief of police or marshal to do so. After quite a lively discussion it was finally agreed to refer the bill to the judiciary committee.

Then Mr Armstrong's free employment [illegible] bill came up for consideration. The bill provides for the establishment of [illegible] public employment [illegible] in cities of a certain population [illegible] at an annual salary of $1,200. The bill was referred back to the committee and a [illegible] taken.

At the afternoon session a communication was read from the supreme court in reply to the senate resolution referring to the "continuing appropriations." The court says it has no constitutional objections to those appropriations. The communication was referred to the financial committee.

The senate then went into committee of general orders, with Mr Brown in the chair.

Mr Johnson's bill for an act to abolish private detective agencies, and to prohibit any and all persons from conducting such business, etc., was first taken up.

THE WATER PIPE SYSTEM

In the past two years the efforts of the city council in conjunction with a select committee of citizens have succeeded in securing to the city a permanent supply of water of the highest purity and have removed a danger which at one time threatened the future of the city. But it is not enough that the water should be secured among the highest mountain peaks and brought untainted within the city limits. A matter of equal importance is that it should be so distributed that each citizen may secure a supply adequate for his need and that every section of the city may have ample protection from fire. It is these considerations which have led the council with wise foresight to turn their attention to the matter.

In the early history of the city it was unavoidable that the mains should be located in a temporary manner. No one could have foreseen the growth of the city, or if he did he would not have been justified in laying out a system of water distribution such as has since been proved necessary. But the success of Colorado Springs as a city is now assured and the changed conditions require a change of methods. Within the coming years a large sum of money must be spent for pipes and hydrants, small mains must be replaced by large ones and the mains extended over the territory added to the city's area. It is evident that, although the extension of the mains may keep pace with the growth of the city, it is not possible to … with regard to their … It is impossible, without …, to replace a 3-inch main with a 4-inch and that with a 6-inch … with an 8-inch and so on. It is … that a systematic plan … which the … be accomplished, is a matter of … and the only way in which … be obtained … no good … why the city, which … should not adopt the same methods … would be employed by any other corporation, and these methods are the … by the committee now … in the matter. Of the results of their labors and the plan proposed by them it is too soon to speak, but they … about their labors in a systematic and thorough fashion. The … merit the confidence and appreciation of all.

THE SILVER PURCHASE REPEAL

The Sherman Silver act will not be repealed at this session of Congress. The vote in the Senate yesterday on Mr Hill's motion to take up the repeal bill, … the matter. There were forty two votes against consideration of the bill, and only twenty three in favor of it.

With this adverse vote in the Senate … the members of the House of Representatives are not likely to take the matter up, even to please Mr Cleveland.

But while the question may be settled so far as this Congress is concerned, its … is only deferred. It is a question which must be dealt with, and the C… and postpone consideration of it indefinitely. If Mr Cleveland calls a special session early in the year, he may send a special message asking that Congress consider at once the repeal of silver purchase and if he does the pressure in favor of consideration will be much stronger than it is now.

SUGAR FROM SUNBEAMS

For residents of Colorado and the neighboring States, the most timely and interesting article in any of the February magazines is one by H S Adams in the Cosmopolitan on "Sugar from Sunbeams." Of course all sugar comes from sunbeams or is indirectly produced by them, but Mr Adams means sugar from beets.

The first strikingly significant statement in his article is in relation to the percentage of saccharine matter obtained from beets in different parts of the world. "Starting with the Silesian variety" he says "which a century and a half ago was found to analyze six per cent of saccharine matter the percentage has been so increased by the force of heredity that under favorable circumstances fifteen and eighteen per cent can be absolutely depended on and in isolated cases analyses have run up to twenty two, the latter figure having been obtained in the Elkhorn valley Nebraska, and in Wyoming from seed grown in Europe and consequently not acclimated to those sections." Thus we see that the largest percentage of saccharine matter has been obtained in our own country, immediately to the east and north of our own State.

The great desideratum of the sugar beet is sunshine. Given a climate where perennial sunshine prevails, as it does in the great plains of Colorado, and where moisture can be supplied regularly in the necessary quantity as it can be in this State by irrigation and … in raising the sugar beet cannot be doubtful.

There are now in this country six sugar beet plants at Alvarado Watsonville and Chino, California at Grand Island and Norfolk Nebraska and at Lehi, Utah, the last four of these having been established within three years. All these are now doing a successful business.

As to the advantages of establishing … of the plants in the United States Mr Adams says … more than half … coming … would be … it to … actually, it is not difficult to … millions of dollars now … would be … to say nothing of the labor afforded to … of workmen the advantage to a community of … the importance of a general agriculture that must necessarily result from the pursuit of the very careful methods required in the culture of the sugar beet.

The experiment has been tried in this country at various times and places during the past half century but it is only within the past decade that success has been attained. Now that success is so certain there cannot be any good reason why the State of Colorado so exceptionally favored by nature with all the requisites for production of this most necessary article should not at once take the lead in sugar production. If one tenth of the capital that goes every year into prospecting for precious metals from most of which no return is received were to be devoted to the raising of beets Colorado would soon take a front rank among the sugar producing districts of the world.

The bank scandals in Italy may lead to as troublesome a parliamentary crisis there as the Panama scandal has precipitated upon the French republic. Premier Giolitti seems to be badly involved and his downfall would cause little surprise although three months ago he had a three fourths majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

Denver sentiment is by no means all in favor of Sunday opening of concert halls and saloons. A large meeting to protest against the repeal of the Sunday closing ordinance was held Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. and other meetings of the same sort are projected.

The Indian trouble at Pine Ridge seems to be happily settled. The most gratifying and encouraging feature of the affair is the behavior of Chief Young Man Afraid of His Horses and of the Indian soldiers who helped to put down the outbreak.

Republican partisan opposition to the confirmation of Judge Jackson is as reprehensible as Democratic partisan opposition. The nomination should be promptly confirmed, unless some objection can be urged against the character, learning or ability of the appointee.

The legislature has passed the World's Fair bill, and the $100,000 of additional appropriation will soon be available. Colorado will be well represented at the great Exposition. Her mining exhibit will occupy more space than that of any other State except Pennsylvania.

If Mr Cleveland should make up a cabinet containing Walter Q. Gresham, Henry Villard, and Isidor Straus, it would be a very bitter pill for most of the Democratic Senators to swallow.

Again the east of the country is buried in snow and swept by howling blizzards, but Colorado Springs is as sunny and salubrious as ever.

A Good Story About Senator Warren

Senator Warren of Wyoming owes his first start in life to a hopeful looking potato patch. He was the son of a Massachusetts farmer who didn't take stock in education and the boy was tied up to hard farm work. With his mother's aid he had secured some elementary schooling, but anything beyond that seemed hopeless, because every hour of his time was claimed. One spring there were a few seed potatoes left over after planting, and Mr Warren told the lad he might stick them in for himself in a very rocky patch of land provided he'd give in return a certain number of bushels for the use of the seed. It was a hard deal but young Warren's grit rose to the … The land was too rocky to plough if he had had money to do so, but he broke it up … in whatever he could. There was a great patch of … that he couldn't get over but there was still some seed left, and finally the boy poked it in under the edges of the grass wherever he could. He had no hopes of making anything off of his venture, but drouth and every disease known to the potato world appeared that year the crop was a complete failure, and Warren was too disheartened even to dig his spuds. His father however insisted on it, but there was nothing but nubbins to reward them. Then Warren, in despair, lifted the edges of the troublesome grass with a crowbar and there were potatoes fit for a king in spite of the fact that they were an inferior variety. They were big and fine and lots of them. The result was that the boy managed to rescue enough money to start him at Wilbraham academy and from that time on he bent things to his own advantage no matter what the …—[Mrs. McGuirk in Kate Field's Washington.

Conspiracy to Make Fraud Triumphant.

The Republican minority of the Fitch committee of congress which committee made an investigation into the workings of the federal election laws in this city has submitted a strong presentation of its views—strong not only in its exposure of the weakness of the majority report, but also in its elucidation of the Democratic conspiracy to repeal and abolish all the safeguards of honest elections which are now guaranteed by the federal election laws. The minority says

The investigation was so arranged either by design or accident as to interfere as much as possible with the proper execution and administration in the city of New York of the election laws of the United States in the last congressional and presidential election.

The reader who recalls the fact that the committee began its sittings on Oct. 15 of last year and continued them at intervals in this city up to and including the election day need not be reminded that the purpose of the plot was to assist in the Democratic conspiracy to obtain a large fraudulent vote. These sittings were simply notices to repeaters and unqualified voters that part of the power of the federal government was to be used to screen them from the law's penalties.

The Republican members of the committee admit that it costs something to execute the federal laws. This is true of all good statutes. The best way to lessen the expense is to diminish the numbers and lessen the opportunities of the criminal classes.

In regard to Commissioner Davenport's … the … of the committee shows that they were presented in the United States Court after the manner … by the law, that Assistant District Attorney Abram J Rose a Democratic appointee of United States District Attorney Walker attended court when they were … and offered no objection … The Federal election laws are defended by the Republican minority … to be very efficient and … have been … free from all taint of partisanship. The report … with this language

As the majority propose to report a bill for the repeal of these laws we … that a repeal will … the doors for the entrance of political desperadoes who will … franchise and endanger the peace of … and … the … of such laws would be … of congress … elections … their punishment impossible, enable … persons to thwart the will of the people and constitute a crime against the nation.

Let the … words … and the warnings recalled when the Democratic majority in the next congress sends a bill to President Cleveland to repeal the honest election laws.—New York Mail and Express.

ELECTRICITY IN MOUNTAINS

Intensity of the Phenomena Among the Peaks of Colorado.

The peculiar buzzing and crackling sound … the standing of the … are … on the mountains of Colorado. The prospectors miners and drivers of pack trains to the high mines (above 11,000 feet) live in the midst of these electrical phenomena and often find much amusement in observing their effect on the average tenderfoot especially when lady tourists—as not seldom happens—find their long hair … from the fastenings and stand up like the fabled headdress of the Furies. I have repeatedly heard the sounds at elevations between 6,000 and 7,000 feet but they are much more noticeable at higher elevations where they are sometimes terrific. They sometimes mark the tension of the air just preceding a discharge of lightning but in general they are harmless. I have many times noticed them proceeding with hardly any interruption while the lightning was leaping from cloud to cloud overhead. They are caused by the passage of an electrified cloud and the effect is rather worse when one is in the midst of the cloud. On these mountains the manifestation of intense electrical phenomena is seldom seen except when there is hail or pellet snow or the most violent summer showers, and the latter usually have hail in some part of the storm. The loudest buzzings I have ever heard came while a hail storm was approaching and while the peculiar shelf or cornice which projects from the base of the storm-mass was in the zenith. This shelf has a flattish and rather smooth surface on its under side, and when seen from a distance appears to consist of a mass of cloud having an under pavement of low domes or flattish billows, and the broader and more peaceful it looks the worse is the wrath of the storm above and within it. Lightning seldom comes from it, yet it is in a state of intense electrical excitement. While it is passing there is a loud hissing from stretched wires (not connected with the earth), a stream of sparks, and at night, a glow like St. Elmo's fire. A herd of cattle can sometimes be … in the dark at night by their own light.

The fact is, the physiological effects of electric induction are so common in the higher mountains and are often so ludicrous that we are in danger of throwing aside these phenomena as of no special scientific interest. Yet … have a complex problem involving not only the electrified clouds and the air as dielectric but also the electrical property of the ground itself. Now many of the prospectors for metal … of lightning on … contain … differ from the ordinary. Some of … propose to be able to know the nature of the minerals in a mountain by observing the buzzing and other phenomena on the passage of electric clouds but it is difficult to get them to talk about it, as they appear to regard the matter as a trade secret. Even experienced prospectors leave a certain peak on the approach of severe thunder storms … their sensations of a … unendurable even when the lightning does not strike the mountain. They report that stones are loosened from the cliffs and fall in dangerous fusilades down the mountain side. No doubt these are in part landslides, but some of them are reported to take place when no rain fell, only snow or hail, or before the rain reached the place. My informant … this language: "The mountain split and threw off them rocks." I have been desirous of determining the truth of these matters by personal observation, but thus far have not found the opportunity. It is … a supposable one that electric attraction or repulsion dislodges blocks already loosened. Have any of your readers made observations on these matters pertaining to the effects of different kinds of rocks or minerals on electric clouds, or vice versa?

Perhaps a nearly related problem is furnished by the causes (electrical or otherwise) of the … and often sleeplessness and oppressed breathing that accompanies a change of locality from a lower to a much higher level.—Science.

While the overtures made cannot be given at this time it is understood that all the road wishes is a guarantee of a certain tonnage. Another excellent authority told a Herald man a few days ago that the Missouri Pacific would build into Durango within a year. This section would make a great feeder for any main line and the business is coveted by a number of roads.—[Durango Herald.

[illegible] VIADUCT.

[illegible]TATIVE STATEMENT [illegible] ENGINEER BLAND

[illegible] Shown to be Liberally [illegible] An Ample Allowance [illegible] All Possible Emergencies

four parts of broken stone, gave an average crushing capacity of [illegible] per square foot, or almost as [illegible] assumed for concrete of English [illegible] cement. Ten experiments on [illegible] land cement, of one part [illegible] parts sand and six parts [illegible] 436,000 pounds per square foot [illegible] ing capacity, that is nearly three times [illegible] crushing capacity which I adopted [illegible] work.

It is very evident from the [illegible] that had I used [illegible] square foot as the safe [illegible] would have had [illegible] and sufficient authority.

Had this been done the [illegible] "Pier No. 6 South" would [illegible] greater than 4 feet [illegible] bottom bed. It is actually [illegible] its top bed, or allowing [illegible] bottom bed area [illegible] stones, its bottom bed [illegible] inches square.

For your information [illegible] pressures which exist on the [illegible] the piers of.

The dome of St. Peter's [illegible] pounds per square foot.

The dome of St. Paul's [illegible] pounds per square foot.

The dome of The Invalides [illegible] pounds per square foot.

The dome of The Pantheon [illegible] pounds per square foot.

Columns of The [illegible] pounds per square foot.

For this data we are [illegible] Delafield, engineer [illegible] Army, and published by [illegible] government light house board.

The above named [illegible] been in existence hundreds of years [illegible] the least of the pressures on the [illegible] times greater than that which [illegible] the concrete of "pier No. 6 south," [illegible] the 81½ feet and the adjacent [illegible] span are fully and entirely [illegible] assumed moving load.

That you may understand precisely the meaning of the moving load assumed [illegible] calculations, and to which the bridge was actually constructed, I may say that the greatest load which can [illegible] a roadway bridge is a dense crowd of people which by a liberal estimate [illegible] weighing 85 pounds per square foot, though the late Mr. Hatfield, a well known [illegible] tect of New York city, found by experiment that it was hardly possible to [illegible] pounds per square foot.

First—If then a compact crowd of people were packed on the entire width [illegible] feet roadway, and also on [illegible] walk, and this crowd extended from the east end of the 81½ feet span to the west end of the 64 feet adjacent deck span, the number of people would be 5000, or about one-third the population of Colorado Springs, assuming each person to cover 1½ square feet of space, these 5000 people, at an average weight of 125 pounds each, would weigh 625,000 pounds; and therefore would bring a pressure of 156,250 pounds on "Pier No. 6 South," and if to this is added the pressure from the dead weight of empty bridge, there would result a pressure of 9480 pounds per square foot on the top of the concrete, or about 1-16th of its crushing capacity. Or in other words, so that a working load on the concrete of 10,000 pounds per square foot should not be exceeded, the pedestal stone need be only 4 feet 10 inches square.

Second—If there were four electric car tracks on the viaduct instead of two as now exists, and if each track were covered by a train of the largest electric cars in use here, and if each train extended over and covered both the 81½ foot span and the adjacent 64 feet span, there would be 24 cars on the two spans; and if each car were crowded to its "crushing" capacity which the Electric company informs me is 85 people, then the total weight of all these tightly packed cars would be 600,000 pounds, of which 150,000 pounds is carried by "Pier No. 6, South." If to this 150,000 pounds is added, the weight due to empty bridge, the total load on the pier in question would be 230,[illegible] pounds, and this would produce a pressure on the concrete of [illegible] pounds per square foot, which is about 1-16 the assumed crushing capacity of the material.

Third—The trusses are 42 feet apart center to center. If these trusses were drawn together and placed 16 feet apart—center to center—so as to form a single track railroad bridge, and if on this track were a string of heavy consolidation freight engines coupled together, such engines as are in use on the D. & R. G. R. R., and if this train of engines extended over the entire length of the 81½ feet span and its adjacent 64 feet deck span, the load on "pier No. 6 south" from such engines would be 116,[illegible] pounds, to which adding the dead weight carried by the pier, would make a total of [illegible] pounds, which would produce a pressure on the top of [illegible] of 7800 pounds per square foot, or about one nineteenth of the crushing capacity of the material. Or in other words, so that a safe working load of 10,000 pounds per square feet should not be exceeded, the pedestal stone need only be 4 feet 5 inches square.

Fourth. The width of viaduct between the guard rails is 40 feet, and in this width eight elephants can stand abreast, and in the length of the 81½ feet span and its adjoining 64 feet deck span thirteen elephants can stand "end-to-end," that is to say the entire bridge could be occupied by 104 elephants, which according to [illegible] Indian military authority weigh 6000 pounds apiece, thus bringing a total load on the bridge so covered of 624,000 pounds, of which 156,000 pounds is carried by "pier No. 6 south;" adding to this the dead weight carried by the pier, the total load on top of the concrete is 2[illegible] pounds, which would produce a pressure of 9480 pounds per square foot, or about 1-16 the crushing capacity. Or in other words, to carry this load so that a pressure of 10,000 pounds per square foot be not exceeded, the pedestal stone need be only 4 feet 10 inches square.

Fifth. The ordinary load on the viaduct will never be one-half those enumerated above, this would make a total of about 160,000 pounds on "pier No. 6 south," and this would bring 5400 pounds per square foot on the top of the concrete, whereas 10,000 pounds per square foot is the safe pressure allowed for. For the permanent dead load on the bridge, the stone at "No. 6 south" need not have been greater than 2 feet 10 inches square, and for an additional live load of more than ordinary character, the stone need not have been greater than 4 feet square, and this is on the assumption of a very low crushing capacity for English Portland concrete, of the proportions I have used. In passing I may remark that the floor system of entire viaduct is calculated for a moving load of one hundred pounds per square foot of area.

The following tabulation exhibits the foregoing at a glance:

In my final report to council, dated Jan 16, 1890, after notifying the city that I formally accepted the bridge as I am required to do by the specifications and contract, I inform [illegible] honorable body that "the Bridge [illegible] I well and truly and

[illegible]

[illegible] over that [illegible] striking snowbanks from two to six feet [illegible] from 100 to 200 feet in length. I've seen a great deal of snow [illegible] but the experience which I am about to relate was the most trying [illegible] of all the wild rides that I ever [illegible] on an engine.

"We were [illegible] the road of drifts. [illegible] weather, and the cab was [illegible] with only a little bit of diamond shaped window in front of us through which we could look. By 'we,' I refer to myself, the fireman and the conductor of our snow train, which consisted of stanch old No. [illegible] and her snow plow.

"I gave the engine a good head of steam, and off we went. As we whirled along, all cooped up in our cab, the engine moving at the rate of sixty [illegible] an hour, a cloud of fine snow enveloped us as the plow struck the little drifts ahead of us. That was nothing, however, to what was coming. We drove ahead for some distance, and in a short time reached that part of the country where the great drifts had covered the track.

"Serious work was ahead of us, and we knew it. The drifts began to get deeper, and as the snow was thrown from side to side the cab [illegible] with steam, caused by the snow striking the boiler head of the engine. So dense did it become that we could not see one another in the cab and it was with the greatest difficulty that I could distinguish an object ahead of me. Most of the time I could see nothing in front of me but a cloud of snow and steam. The conductor sat on the fireman's seat, straining his eyes also to catch a glimpse of the track ahead. The fireman shoveled coal into the roaring furnace almost incessantly. Those were moments of suspense for us. I kept my right hand on the throttle valve, grasping the reverse bar with my left. Every man of us kept himself braced for the shocks that were constantly occurring as the plow struck the rapidly deepening drifts. The fireman shoveled coal and worked the left hand injector. He had no time to sit down, and when not feeding the furnace braced himself by holding on to the lower part of the throttle lever.

"On we rushed, and as we flew past a little station I heard a great shout. Looking backward through the pass of snow and steam we could see a crowd of villagers waving their hats, and their shouts of encouragement were borne to us on the bitter winds. But the supreme moment was coming. We were nearing the great drifts and must plunge into them. The conductor looks at his watch. 'All right, Ed. Let her go.' I know what this meant, so did my fireman, for he began to feel the furnace with shovelful after shovelful of coal. Instinctively I raised my hand to the whistle cord and pulled it once, twice, thrice. I shall never forget those piercing shrieks that rent the desolate skies of South Dakota.

"It seemed truly as if to get understood the danger we were in and was sounding our death knell. But there was no time for meditation or even to know it, but I could not in those moments banish from my mind thoughts of home and loved ones. Maybe this was my last run. Life and death hovering hands and wait at yonder snow mountain to receive us. But I could not and [illegible] Shouting to my companions to be on their guard, I threw open the throttle valve to its widest extent. Brave old No. [illegible] trembled and groaned with anguish as the strain was put upon her and then bounded forward like a wounded deer. There is the drift!

"'Look out!' we cry to one another in unison, but ere the words have escaped our lips the crash is upon us. There is a mighty shock, then for an instant oblivion. The end has come. No, almost instantly our senses have returned to us, and we find ourselves in a heap on the floor of the engine cab. I sprang to the reverse bar and dropped the lever into the corner notch of the quadrant in order to give the machine more power. How she struggled! It seemed to me as if she were a mad monster raging with an overpowering foe. We could feel the great machine [illegible] king, working, struggling to free herself from the mountain of snow that embraced her. Moments seemed as hours to us. Would the brave engine survive the awful strain? Would not her boilers burst under the awful pressure of steam? We were blinded by the snow and steam, and could not see our hands before our faces.

Finally I shut off the steam, and we backed out, got another fresh start and repeated the experience until the drift was finally broken. Thus we worked for two days, and there was not a moment of the time when our lives were not in danger. It was a rough experience and one that I do not care to repeat."

This brave engineer is but one of the many brave boys in the northwest who have had just such experiences. Theirs is a calling that requires bravery, coolness and prudence, and they are deserving of great credit and some of them better pay.

Men Who Are Bores.

The man who is not a bore if he hits on an uncongenial subject very quickly leaves it. The bore rasps on, oblivious of the mental opposition which he is encountering. The bore has no notion of what is the line of least resistance. He does not pick the smoothest path he can find, but snorts with the utmost unconcern down the road of maximum friction. The man who is not a bore, with an instinct that the story of how the village pump was painted [illegible] with orders of the vicar's church warden is not interesting to his audience and immediately changes the subject.

Not so the bore. He knows, or thinks he knows, what is a really good story, [illegible] therefore [illegible] of the far away look that has come into the eyes of Miss Jones

[illegible]

Getting Around a Corner.

A [illegible] Mr. Jennings started [illegible] to a long [illegible] up and down the big [illegible]

[illegible] I drove four horses [illegible] from the back step of [illegible]

"And how did work the machine?"

"You let the machine alone. It will work itself. Just you drive straight up to that corner, then turn and go across by the [illegible] There, he will do the cutting."

The new [illegible] and drove a few yards very cautiously, then halted, looked at the mysterious thing behind him and shouted to Mr. Jennings, who had already started to the rescue of his fruit trees.

"And does she keep a cuttin like this all the time I keep agoin?"

"Yes, yes, go ahead."

"Well, then, how can I save the bit in the [illegible] When I drive up there, she'll just cut it down anyway, and I won't have nothing to say about it."

"Why, you idiot! When you get"—

"Ay course, ay course! I was just jokin. When I get there, I'll just stand still till I get past."—David Budge in Harper's.

The Great Wall of China.

The scenery from the great wall is very fine. The wall is here a dividing line between the high, rugged hills of China, which tower above us on the one hand, and the great sandy plains of Mongolia on the other, with dim mountain summits beyond in the distance. Over these barren, rocky spurs and acclivities, ascending to their very summits, winding about in irregular curves and zigzags, its serried battlements clear cut against the sky on the topmost ridges, descending into dark gullies to appear again rising on the other side, the endless line of massive stone and brick runs on and on until lost to sight behind the farthest range.

And so it goes for miles and miles, eastward to the Pechili gulf and westward, mostly in two great, rambling lines, along the border of the Gobi desert and Kan-Soo, until it ends among the foothills of the Nan-Shan range. However we may regard it, whether as a grand conception for the defence of an empire, as an engineering feat or merely as a result of the persistent application of human labor, it is a stupendous work. No achievement of the present time compares with it in magnitude.—Century.

Thoughts of a Fanciful Woman.

"Do you know," said a person recently—of course the "person" was a fanciful woman—"as I go about the city, rushing through ticket offices at the ferries and elevated stations, I feel impelled sometimes to stop for a glimpse at the owner, if there is any, of the mysterious hand which is always being held out to me. At every change in my course there is the box, the aperture, and the hand taking in my money and putting out my ticket. Sometimes I think it must belong in all its multiplication to one personality, some hundred armed Briareus, who is keeping it all in motion at once, for it plies back and forth always with the same mechanical movement. Occasionally I speak at the boxes, ask a question, and the voice which replies, I am convinced, comes from the hand, for I see nobody or nothing but that five fingered automaton. There is something positively uncanny about it all to me. Did you ever think so?"

And the other "person," who was a practical prosaic, matter of fact man, said, "No, I never did."—Her Point of View in New York Times.

A Woman's Age.

A woman ought to be as willing to tell her age as to tell her name or the name of the town she lives in. With critical [illegible] waiting to hear and speak disparaging comments, no one can blame her for keeping silence about a purely personal matter. No son or daughter of a true mother or a chivalrous father ever makes the subject of age, or any other that might cause pain or annoyance a matter of conversation.—Helen M. North in Harper's Bazar.

ATCHISON, TOPEKA AND SANTA FE.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED EXCURSIONS TO CALIFORNIA.

Jack Frost stimulates travel. When he touches our ears we think about getting warm. California has the ideal winter climate, just far enough South to be sunshiny and frostless, and yet with sufficient tonic in the air.

Santa Fe Route takes Jack Frost's hints and has arranged a series of personally conducted weekly excursions to California. Pullman Tourist Sleepers, furnished with bedding, toilet articles, etc., leave Chicago and St. Louis every Saturday evening, and leave Kansas City every Sunday morning, via A. T. & S. F. and A. & P. line, for Los Angeles and San Francisco on fast express trains.

Special agents and porters in attendance. Second-class tickets honored. A small charge for use of tourist sleeper. Everything neat, clean and comfortable.

Inquire of nearest ticket agent, or write to G. T. Nicholson, G. P. & T. A. Santa Fe Route, Topeka, Kan., for a copy of folder describing these excursions.

Passengers leaving Colorado Springs Monday morning at 2.10, will connect with the [illegible] trains.

A Modern Newspaper

Mr Chas S Sprague spoke in the Y M C A rooms last evening to about one hundred young men having for his topic "The Modern Newspaper" Mr Sprague, after a few introductory remarks, detailed the growth of the newspaper as was shown by increased press facilities Only a few years ago the small press fed by hand was all that was necessary, now a dozen swift-running perfecting presses turned off the mammoth election edition of 500,000 copies of the New York World in the few hours before noon

The speaker went on to give some interesting statistics of newspaper growth as shown by the great quantities of white paper used, the immense sums spent in gathering news, in placing it in type and setting it before the public. He also spoke briefly of newspaper workers of all grades of the salaried, and of the energy and persistence which characterized newspaper reporters particularly In concluding Mr Sprague discussed the mission of the newspaper, speaking of its work in aid of every good [illegible] and of its generally high aim and lofty purpose.

Why a Man Lost Faith

Ex-Judge Henry E. Howland is credited with the following

It is the gay and palpable subterfuges, deceits and evasions that are abhorrent to our nature in dealing with the outside world, like that in a prohibition town in Maine, where a lank and red nosed countryman called into a drug store and placing a demijohn on the counter said to the clerk, "I want a gallon of rum baby's sick," or the cautious [illegible] for an [illegible] suggested by the answer of the rector of a country parish who was forming his sermon one Sunday morning and was waited upon in his study by his organist who asked what he should play "I don't know," said the rector, absentmindedly, "what kind of a hand have you got?"—New York World

New York [illegible] Market.

New York, Feb. 6.—Money on call has been easy, ranging from 2 to 2½, last loan at 2 and closing offered at 2.

There was a moderately active business in stocks to-day, but with the exception of some strength in the early dealings when operators were waiting for some explanations of the prospects of the repeal of the silver law, it was weak almost throughout, and final prices are generally at the lowest. The gold question was the moving force in the market, and when the senate by a vote of 2 to 1, refused to vote on a motion to repeal the silver law the market weakened considerably under the pressure of long stock, the decline being accelerated by the operations of the bears who from that time moved prices their own way Sterling exchange was firm the bills drawn against gold shipments having been readily absorbed and bankers announce that shipments of gold are likely to be made at the end of the week The foreign advices received on the street are that should the silver law be repealed there would probably be [illegible] demand for gold

The Industrials were [illegible] prominent Only Cordage and Sugar showed any particular strength the rest moving in unison with the general railroad list and Distillers, showing a final loss of only ¼ per cent The [illegible] tions of the bears were directed largely against the Grangers and buying of St. Paul by London had little influence to stop the effects of their [illegible] The weak spots on the list, however, were the Coalers. The further action against the Jersey Central in the New Jersey courts, in connection with the persistent selling of the other Anthracite stocks on account of the demoralization caused by the strife between the Pennsylvania and the Reading, was effective in lowering quotations among the whole group Delaware and Hudson led with a loss of 2 per cent but Lackawanna and Reading a [illegible] lost ¾ The losses among the Grangers were nearly as large The strong feature was New England, but only in the forenoon when there was an urgent demand for the stock and the proximity of the closing of the books led to the belief that one side or the other in the contest was strengthening its lines. Later in the day it was allowed to run off to about its lowest point and finally closed unchanged Among the specialties the arrival of the City of Pekin infused a little life into Pacific Mail but Colorado Fuel was the only one to make any material change rising to 70 and falling back 1 per cent The market closed active and weak at about the low at prices The demand for railroad bonds showed some abatement but prices were well maintained and fractional gains were the rule all along the line Total sales aggregated 361,8[illegible] shares
